Welcome to Koushik: a martial artist, hardware hacking, amateur computer scientist. For the past few years Koushik has been mainly working on web development with technologies such as PHP, Javascript, and MySQL. This includes various internships and undergraduate research experience.

As of now, Koushik is exploring new areas of computer science namely internet security, web hacking, and cryptography. What are Koushik's goals in doing this? Nothing more than the joy of the knowledge associated with it.

When Koushik is not on his computer he enjoys sparring and practicing karate and doing random hardware hacks of old appliances.
